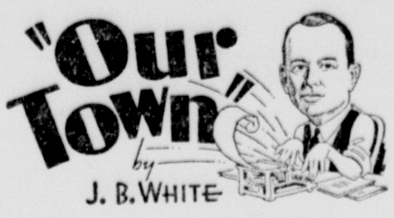
The Cameron Herald

VOLUME NUMBER 78. CAMERON, MILAM COUNTY, TEXAS, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1938. TEN PAGES—TODAY NUMBER 33



Error No. 2

On September 23, 1937, the Herald published an editorial entitled "$150,000 For What?" At that time this newspaper told the tax payers of Cameron that such a bond issue would avail nothing as it would be indequate to purchase the water utilities in Cameron. Since that time there have been a number of developments in the case.

After falling into the error of arbitration the City Council now calls for an election to vote $180,000 in bonds to purchase the same water works it proposed in 1937 to buy for $150,000. The city has made the same error twice in succession. In the first instance the bond issue was inadequate and the proposed issue to be voted on Tuesday, December 6, is also inadequate and will not be sufficient by any means to pay for the water utilities owned by the Cummunity Public Service Company.

When the first bond issue was voted, the city had not reached an agreement with the water company and likewise at the present time, it has no agreement with the water company as to a purchase price and in addition it is definitely known that the water utilities in Cameron are not for sale and will not be sold, so that on next Tuesday if the tax payers authorize the bond issue, it will be nothing more than the exercise of a misdirected civic effort.

The bond issue should be defeated for several reasons, one of which is that it is inadequate and does not represent a business-like approach to the problem. In the editorial published in September 1937, the Herald set out at length a number of good and sufficient reasons why the city should not undertake to enter the field of ownership of utilities. These reasons are no less important now than in 1937. In fact it has been increasingly evident that the city needs certain public improvements which are definitely more important to the people than embarking upon a business enterprise about which it knows nothing and which at best can only increase the burdens of the city.

The Community Public Service Company will not sell its properties in Cameron and will resist in the courts any effort to confiscate its properties. Informed citizens know that the price offered by the city for the water utilities is far below their actual value and the water company could not be expected to submit to confiscation and will not do so nothwithstanding the fact that the city is proceeding on the basis of an option in the franchise which indicates the city may own the water company at any time it is offered for sale or at any time it may elect to own them.

Under the law the city has the power to regulate water rates, to provide for better water, if it is not satisfied with the present supply and can in other ways give Cameron the kind of water supply it deems necessary. It is definitely known that the Community Public Service Company will respond to any reasonable request made by the city for the improvement of its service and water supply. The bond issue should be defeated on next Tuesday. If the City Council persists in entering the utility field, it should first reach an agreement with the water company on a price to be paid for the water utilities and if the water company wishes to sell its properties there should be no unreasonable delay in acquiring them. It is useless and hopeless to proceed with these spurious bond issues and by this time it should be evident to the tax payers that the whole matter has been improperly submitted.

The city proposes $8,000 in addition to the $171,000 value placed on the plant, to be used for improvements. It must be taken into consideration that the bond broker is to receive two per cent of the total issue which would be $3,600 and the engineers are also to receive their cut. In addition to these outlays the city must now pay the total cost of engineers who made the valuation on the plant and this sum is reported to be in excess of $3,000. This would leave little or no money for any improvements and it appears the Council has again underestimated the generosity of the tax payers. Again we ask: What is the use of voting these bonds when they will not be used and if so are not sufficient in amount to buy the properties contemplated. It is important to note as the previous editorial outlined that the water company pays $3,137.82 in taxes each year to the county and city. It is important under these trying conditions to recognize that no business can survive by turning good paying customers away from its door. If we compute these taxes over a period of thirty years, we can surely see that almost $100,000 will have been lost to the city and county in that period of time. Looking at the question from still another angle it is important to note that the city could not finance costly litigation in the courts and is defeated before it starts. In the first place this is no way to approach the matter. If and when the water company wishes to sell its plant, time will be sufficient for the city then to consider what method it will employ to finance its purchase and to provide for its operation.

In this day of dangerous tendencies to incur public debt far beyond the ability of a given political sub-division to pay it is doubtful if anything we might say will serve any good purpose but the Herald can not overlook its duty in this matter and inasmuch as its previous stand has been justified in every sense by developments and the further fact that there is no good reason for voting these bonds as they are, insufficient, the property is not for sale, we make this appeal to those who will have the bill to pay, that on next Tuesday you go to the polls, take your business in hand and stop this useless effort to acquire something that is not for sale nor can be purchased.

AWARD VOTE ENDS

PEOPLE PROTEST LOSS OF OLD TOWN CLOCK

Many protests were being made by citizens here this week when they learned for the first time that the old town clock on the court house would be torn down and a statue of justice dismantled.

The people usually manifest very little interest in the affairs of their government and this protest is too late to be taken into consideration as contract has already been let and the old court house, one of the most beautiful buildings of its kind in Texas will have a flat roof with all of the artistic top placed there more than forty years ago, completely torn away.

Confirmation could not be made but it was reported that the clock which for almost half a century has tolled the hours of day and night and become something inseparable from the life of the community, was installed at a cost of $15,000.

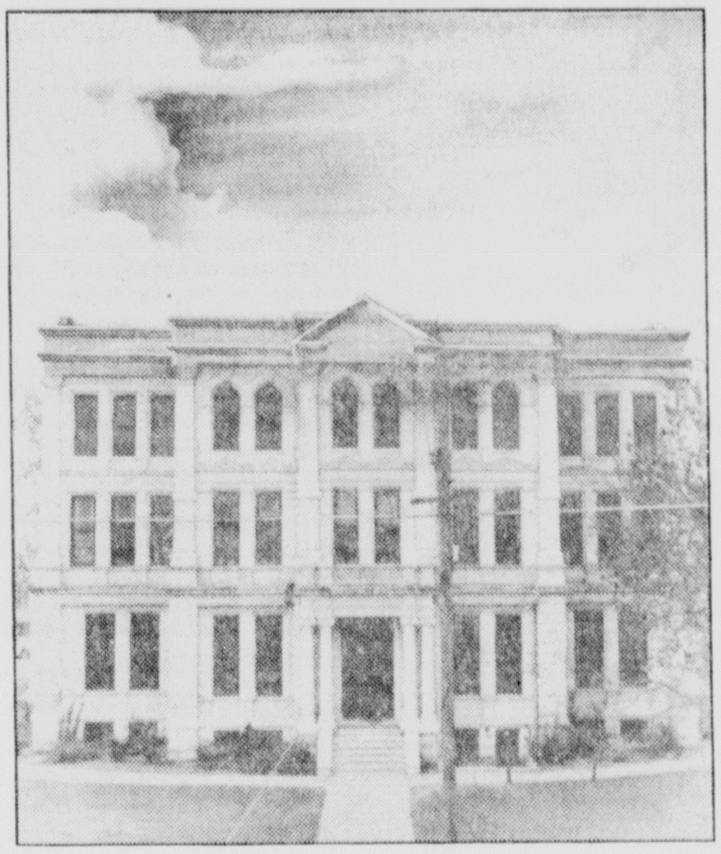
How the Courthouse Will Look in the Future



Here is a picture of the archiects drawing showing the Cameron court house as it will appear in the future with its new roof.

McClellan, Brown and McClellan of Waco were awarded contract to do the work according to plans and specifications prepared by J. E. Johnson, local architect.

Work includes concrete roof, plastered ceilings, new electrical system, repairing, remodeling and decorating interior terrazzo floors, etc. Making a modern and fire proof building throughout.

Through grant from the Government of $11,659 it is made possible for the county commissioners to save the tax payers of Milam County large sums of money in the years to come.

The cost of the project to the County is $13,160 all of which will be paid in full within less than 18 years from savings in repair expenditures.

Repairs to Court House have cost the people of this County some $15,000 during the past Twenty years over and above normal operation and maintainance, all of which will be saved in the future by the project. In addition to eliminating future repairs, the people of the County save $200 or more annually on insurance premiums.

This project of repairs and alterations to the Court House was considered by the Commissioners of Milam County to be a sound business and money saving deal whereby the people of the county will be relieved of a large tax burden in the years to come.

Down With the Drunken Driver.

No subject has engaged our attention and earrnest efforts longer on the radio than the need for stopping the useless slaghter of men, women and children by reckless and drunken drivers. In all this experience, nothing has touched our heart more deeply than a poem which was sent us by A. L. Katz of Camden, Ark., back in 1937. It was written by a mother in Kansas City who had given her little boy a wagon for Christmas, and within a short time he joyously went out of doors to play with it. Whithin a hour he lay crushed by a passing car. Just before he died he said, "Kiss me, Mommie; my lips are getting dry."

This poem has done more to make people stop and think than anything else I know. Entitled "That Little Angel," it reads:

That new little angel, that little boy,
He is mine, dear God, my life, my joy.
Watch over him keep him gay,
For he liked to be happy the livelong day.

You who have so many children there,
Will you not give him especial care?
He's a bit shy, my little lad,
And it would quicken and make his small heart glad,
To take his hand in Thine—
(He always walked thus, holding mine.)

Tell him you have just the toy,
For such a brave little boy
Who never whimpered, though sorely hurt,
Broken—bleeding—and covered with dirt.

Dear Lord, if I may be so bold,
Give him a wagon on your streets of gold,
Where no cars rush madly by at will,
Leaving soft litte bodies crushed and still.

And to me, give peace from the hurt of his cry,
"Kiss me, Mommie; my lips are getting dry."

Foe on Highways.

We are ever ready on Memorial Day to honor the memory of those who died in defense of our honor, our liberty and our freedom. It is proper that we do so. Today we claim to be at peace with the whole world, yet we are embroiled in the greatest battle of history. We are face to face with our most unconquerable foe. The loss of life on the highways out numbers that in any previous war of our history. I refer to the menace of our defenseless boys and girls as they peacefully tread the highways and streets of our fair land, only to encounter the on rush of the speed demon, the reckless and drunken drivers.

I say the most unconquerable foe because the sages of old have said that the he who conquers self conquers all. And who amongst us can truthfully say that the speed-bug hasn't nibbled on us just a little bit sometime or other? We are a fast traveling people—sixty miles an hour is one mile per minute and that is eighty-eight feet a second. A A scond is mightly quick; check it on your watch. It is very difficult for any of us to realize that five lives are crushed out every day in the year in Texas by the speed demon—until it strikes home. My files are full of letters from broken-hearted mothers.

Highways Hazardous.

Friends, highways are happy ways. More people are using the beautiful highways in beautiful Texas than ever before. Our Highway Department is certainly building mighty fine ones. It is refreshing and healthful to get out in our automobiles and to ride over smooth, winding highways of Texas. But, my friends, to ride over the highways of Texas is a dangerous pastime, or a hazardous necessity. Let me read you part of Governor Allred's message. Here is what he said:

Thrity-eight thousand people were killed in the United States last year in traffic accidents. Almost 2,000 of them lost their lives in Texas. More Americans are brutally killed in trafic accidents in eighteen months than were destroyed during the great World War.

Isin't this a challenge to us? We have simply got to do something to cut down this annual loss of life, to say nothing of the maimed and crippled as well as property damage running into the millions of dollars.

During the regular session of the Forty-Fourth Legislature we passed a drivers' license law. It is weak and ineffective. It was loaded with criticism of any individual,tnmnunn amendments; and, without criticism of any individual, I think this was due to a belief on the part of some members of the Legislature that their constituents would be resentful of rigid State regulation. I think we misjudged the sentiment of the people. I think they want something effective done about this terrible thing. I think they want the highways made safer for us all. I know tney want to do away with the anguish and tragedy of little children slaughtered and maimed on their way to school.

I recommend the passage of a rigid, uniform drivers' license law, and of measures making more effective the regulation of trucks and busses, whether common carrier or privately owned. Scarcely any of us but has suffered one of these disasters within the circle of his acquaintance; and all too often are having the lesson brought home by the needless loss of a loved one.

Need of Public Opinion.

I recognize that the success of these measures will depend to a tremendous extent upon public education and the support of public opinion. I am taking immediate steps to assist our Public Safety Department and safety councils throughout the State in better carrying on this program of education and to stimulate public opinion. In the meantime, however, I cannot too seriously and earnestly urge the passage of these laws. The time has come when personal inconveniencies must, to a considerable extent, give way to public welfare and safety.

The State highway patrol is a magnificent organization, but woefully undermanned. Today we have less than 150 of these fine young men to patrol thousands of miles of highways. The force should be doubled at least. They should be equipped for the most part with light, speedy cars instead of motorcyles, as at present. This can and should be paid for out of the State highway fund, since this organization is primarily charged with patrolling the highways and enforcement of safety measures.

On our radio programs I gave wide dissemination to this truly magnificent address of Governor Allred His views on this subject of curbing death on the highways were the same as mine. And our campaign for traffic safety led to Governor Allred putting me to work.

Next Week—Traffic Safety Committee.

Beginning of the Year

As early as 251 B. C., the Romans accepted January as the beginning of the year. They named the month in honor of Janus, the twe-faced god, as looking both into the past and the future. During the Middle Ages the year was made to begin at various dates. In England, in 1751, January was made the first month by act of Parliment.

CEDARS OF LEBANON

Among the world's oldest Christmas trees are those which stand within the nascent Republic of Labonon, in Syria, authorized by a recent Franco-Lebanese treaty. An ranean, on a shelflike plateau, the impressive little colony of 400 trees are descendants of the famous Cedars of Lebanon, so often mentioned in the Bible. The wood used in building King Solomon's temple was hewn from the cedar forests of Lebanon.

Both Moslems and Maronite Christians are forbidden by religion and law from marring the cedars which were venerated as manarchs among trees even before Judah had her first king.

Bark of the trees is coarse and rough, reddish brown, frosted with whitish hoar. The wood which grows reddish to yellow at the center is extremely hard, close grained, fragrant and capable of high polish, which made it prized by ancients for carved images. Some of the trees attain a height of 50 to 80 feet, and are very large in diameter at the girth.

There are twelve especially famous members of the tree colony, each with a distinctive personality. The oldest of all—which may have more than 1,500 or 1,000 years to its credit—is "the Guardian." It knows no enemy but lightning. Another, "the Seven-Branched Candlestick," looks just up from a low main one. In the hollow of another tree a hermit lived for sixteen years.

The venerable cedars still "bring forth fruit in their old age," bearing fragrant cones which take two years to mature to their three or four inch length, exuding resin from their twigs.

Popcorn Ball Decorations

Popcorn balls, wrapped in red and green tissue paper, silver paper or glistening cellophane, and piled in a decorated basket, make attractive centerpieces for Christmas dinner or party tables. A small favor may be placed in each ball, to add interest that, with a cluster of trunks rising at a party. Hung on the Christmas tree, these balls make pretty ornaments for the strong lower branches that always seem to be neglected when the tree is decorated.

FARM CLUB NEWS

Hoyte Home Demonstration Club,
Mrs. Lee Heitman, Reporter:

The Hoyte Home Demonstration Club donated a quilt at its club party on Saturday night held at Mrs. Heitman's, and Mrs. Jim Neinast held the lucky number to become the owner. The quilt brought $12.40 and the money is to be put in the club treasury. The Hoyte club although just recently organized, has brought its membership up from five to nineteen. We wish to thank those that helped on the quilt, also those that bought tickets.

A nice crowd attended the club party.

42 and Chinese Checkers were the games enjoyed. Refreshments of cake and coffee were served.

The next club party is to be held in the home of Mrs. James Elrod on the night of New Year's eve. All members and their families are invited to be present.

FRENCHMAN TELLS STRANGE STORY OF WAR EXPERIENCE

Prisoner, Freed by Kaiser to Visit Home in France, Returns to Germany.

Paris.—One of the strange stories of the World war has just come out of the Perpignan district, in the south of France.

It's about Andre-Pierre Cales, a stocky grocer of Belves, who in 1916 obtained leave of absence from a German prison camp, visited his native village in France and then returned to Germany as a captive for the duration of the war.

Incredible as the story may seem, M. Cales has documentary evidence to prove his story. On the wall of his store is the framed permit of the German authorities, signed by the kaiser, permitting him to leave Germany for eight days on condition that he return to the prison camp.

Captured by Germans.

In 1914 Cales was assigned to the one hundred ninth infantry. He fought with his regiment through the first battle of the Marne. But on February 12, 1915, he was wounded at Suippes and was captured when the rest of his company fell back in temporary retreat. He was sent to a military hospital at Spire and later was interned at Wurzberg in Bavaria.

Early next year Private Cales received a letter from his wife, mailed from their home in Belves. She told him his father was dying, that daily his father wondered why he was not at the bedside. She urged him to do everything in his power to persuade the German authorities to permit him to come home, even if it were for only a few days.

Cales tried. It looked hopeless. Then the commander of the prison camp informed him that the kaiser had granted permission. That same night, February 23, 1916, he boarded a train for Switzerland.

Keeps the Faith.

So extraordinary was the situation that the French authorities did not believe him at first. In the end they let him into France, guarded by an officer, but they questioned him so long that he only had three days at home.

When he reached Belves, his wife, in mourning, greeted him at the door. His father had died the week before.

During the three days at home Cales was the wonder of the village, Cales and the bodyguard that followed him wherever he went. Why, he was asked, should he keep the agreement and return to Germany? Cales replied that was the bargain, and three days later he boarded a train for Switzerland, and more than half of his former friends thought there was something wrong with him.

Cales went back to the prison camp. In 1919 he was freed. Once again he took the train to Belves.

He says today that he has not left Belves since—and never intends to.

Brakeman Dies Sticking to Wild Train in Wreck

Copperhill, Tenn. — Few heroes about to defy death will ask whether posterity will remember them. Nor did a forty-two-year-old brakeman on a copper mine railway here.

Clarence Howard was aboard a five car freight train when the cars broke away from the engine. He could have leaped safely to the ground, but stuck with his train to forestall what he knew would be a certain wreck unless he applied the hand brakes. Crawford applied those brakes. But too late. There was a crash. He was wedged between two telescoped cars.

Fellow workers could not pull him out. Crawford told them so. He told them to wait for acetylene torches to burn away the twisted steel that compressed his pain wracked body. When the torches arrived Crawford cooly directed the men cutting through the steel.

At the end of three hours Crawford lost consciousness. For five hours more far into dark, his rescuers worked to free him. They succeeded, but Crawford was dead —a hero.

"Party Driving" Helps in More Ways Than One

Denver.—University students' ingenuity has created a new method of earning money to defray expenses. The latest wrinkle is "party driving."

The "party drivers" guarantee sober driving for students on parties. Denver police have started to arrest several drivers of late whose cars were filled with singing, shouting college students, only to be checked by the explanation:

"I'm a party driver."

Kicks Against Fate Over Third Girl; Cuts Foot

New York.—Pete Tsaconas, twenty-seven years old, was hoping all along that finally his wife would have a son, and when she had a daughter, making it three in a row, he was so angry he walked right up to a store in Brooklyn and kicked in the glass. His foot swathed in bandages, he limped before Magistrate Mark Rudich in Flatbush court, who reproved him for kicking against fate.

WHAT CHRISTMAS MEANS

Xmas is a day for those who keep the high law of personal honor, humbleness, goodness, love and service. It means nothing to those outside this pale. But it brings holy hours to those millions of homes where trees stand trimmed, where small children rush and shout, or older children are putting young, strong arms about mother and daddy to thank them for love and gifts—those homes where long and busy days and responsibility do not leave much time for demonstrable affection, yet where love abideth always.—Kathleen Norris.

Christmas Air

Every big London market has its own special characteristics. One of the most characteristic of all is Leaden-Hall market, because of its position and the essentially friendly and family air about it. During the Christmas season the air is positively festive.

Italian Christmas Industry

Naples was the center of the Italian Christmas industry during the fifteenth century and had whole bands of artists, "figurari" as they were called, who did nothing but make dolls for Christmas.

Holiday Garnish for Salads

Cranberry jully sliced and cut into fancy shapes with a cookie cutter or a knife makes an attractive and unusual garnish for salads and desserts during the holiday season.

Spririt of Christmas

By Katherine Edelman

Surrender yourself to the Spirit of Christmas! Let its joy thrill you—let its peace steal softly across your heart! Open our ears to the magic of its message—open your eyes to the miracles it accomplishes!

Read again Dickens' Christmas Carol, the best known and most inspiring of all the Christmas stories. And don't feel ashamed, if at the end, as Tiny Tim whispers, "God bless us, every one," you find your own eyes wet with tears.

Open the Book of Books, and let Luke tell you about that first Christmas—of the long journey to Bethlehem, of the birth in the humble manger, of the shepherds keeping watch over their flocks. Listen to the heavenly music that was heard upon the hills, to the thrilling words of the angel, "Behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord." Bow your head and give thanks for the Prince of Peace who came, saying with the angels, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

Let Matthew tell you of the coming of the Wise Men from the East, with their gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh, which they presented to the Christ Child.

Then, with the Spirit of Christmas in your heart, go forth and help make Christmas a brighter and a happier day for others!

Miss Vera Avrett,
Gardner Home Dem. Club,
Tanglewood, Texas:

"The importance of diet cannot be emphasized too strongly in any program of health building or health preserving," Mrs. Babe Yount told members of the Cardner Home Demonstration Club when they met with Mrs. E. M. Avrett, November 9th.

"A child's food habits are formed early in life and it is important that they be good habits. His meals should be served at regular hours, his food be of the right kind and given in the right amount. The diet of a child differs from that of an adult mainly in the way it is prepared and the amount served. Milk is one of the essentials. At least a pint—preferably a quart a day. It supplies an easily digested, necessary fat, rich in vitamins A, B and D. Vegetables and fruits are important for their minerals and vitamins. Serve leafy green and yellow vegetables often and serve at least one raw vegetable each day. Two fruits a day aid digestion, and one of them should be citrus or tomato. Bread, potatoes and cereals furnish starch and therefore energy Meat is excellent if not served too often or in too large quantities. Liver is valuable in the body for use in forming red blood cells. Butter, cod liver oil and some other fish oils supply important vitamins and concentrated fats for body energy. Simple sweets in small partions may be served at the end of the meal only."

"If a casual, matter of fact attitude is taken toward meals by the adult, the child will accept them. Serve attractively in small portions, vary the diet daily, and see that the child doesn't eat between meals, and the healthy child will be eager for food."

There were 5 club members present and one visitor. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Arthur McDaniel, Nov. 22. Miss Porter will be present and will demonstrate the killing and dressing of poultry.

Mrs. Claude Galbreath,
Nile Home Dem. Club,
Thorndale, Texas, Rt. 1:

The Nile Home Demonstration Club met November 14th at the home of the program chairman Mrs. Roy Clark.

Mrs. W. J. Graham discussed nutrition for children and Mrs. Roy Clark discussed terms used in cooking as sauteing, dredging aspic and others that writers of cook books assume that all understand. Mrs. Clark illustrated "aspic" with a bowl of aspic that is used as a base for salads desserts and main dishes. She passed out individual recipes for each persons recipe file.

Refreshments of pecan cookies, hot tea and coffee were served to one guest, Mrs. Ray Eads and six members.

The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Claud Galbreath Monday, Nov. 28th at 2 p. m. Killing and dressing poultry the Extension Service way will be given by the Home Demonstration Agent, Miss Dorothy Porter.

Tracy Home Dem. Club:

"The right food for a child will furnish material for good bones, sound teeth and a strong body" said Mrs. Terry Sanders, as she discussed "Child Nutrition" to the Tracy Club November 2nd, at the club house.

Our nutrition standard says serve potatoes once a day, meat is an excellent addition to the diet. A child should have at least a pint of milk a day, eggs are good food as they supply vitamins A, B and some D.

Mrs. Cecil Plate handed out "Menus for the Young Child," several passed on to non-club members. Nine members were present.

There are many ways to kill and dress chickens but the best approved method was domonstrated by Miss Dorothy Porter,Home Demonstration Agent, to the Tracy Club, Nov. 16. In addition to the chicken demonstration, Miss Porter tested one canner gauge. 12 members were present.

* * *

Mrs Beuna Chambers,
Bryant Station Home Dem. Club,
Rogers, Texas:

"A wire coat hanger bent to form hooks to hold the chickens feet is an excellent start toward making an easier job of dressing them," Miss Dorothy Porter, County Home Demonstration Agent told the Bryant Station Club which met with Mrs. C. L. Lively on Thursday, Nov. 10.

"This wire hook, which resembles an inverted "Y" when tied to a convenient limb, clothes line, etc., with a heavy cord, holds the fowl securely while the throat is cut and the flesh is not bruised as might happen if it is allowed to flop on the ground while dying," Miss Porter said further as she demonstrated.

Contrary to popular belief it is not necessary to have water boiling to scald a chicken the Agent said further. 146 degrees F. is sufficient to loosen the feathers but not hot enough to cause the skin to tear as often happens when scalding fryers.

The demonstartion was concluded with the proper method of drawing and washing the bird as shown in the Extension Service bulletin, "Preparation of Fowls for Home and Market," No. B-88.

Plans were made for a community party to be held at the school house Friday night November 25th.

Refreshments of peaches with whipped cream and cookies were served to the nine members present and one visitor, Mrs. Fritz Senkel.

The next meeting will be on Tuesday, Nov. 22, instead of the regular Thursday Nov. 24th which is Thanksgiving. Mrs. C. W. Hudson will be hostess.

Mrs. Beuna Chambers,
Bryant Station Home Dem. Club,
Rogers, Texas:

"Fred Cornplow," typifiying America's prosperous parent and his problems of today, was presented vividly to the Bryant Station Club by Mrs. Beuna Chambers, in her review of Sinclair Lewis popular novel "Prodigal Parents" when the club met with Mrs. C. W. Hudson on Tuesday, Nov. 22nd.

Fred's efforts to keep his son Howard in business after he wrecks his third expensive automobile in two years, quits college, and runs away with the daughter of the towns wealthiest man. Keeping his daughter Sara out of jail when she joins the organization of labor agitators. Running away to Europe, taking his wife Hazel along, to escape the bossiness of the children were highlights of the story as told by Mrs. Chambers.

Refreshments of chicken sandwiches, cocoa and cookies were served to the 9 members and one visitor, Mrs. C. L. Williams.

The club voted to have only one December meeting, which will be with Mrs. G. W. Mann on December 15. A Christmas party will follow the candy demonstration by Miss Nellie Blackstock. Each person, member or visitor, attending this meeting is asked to bring a small inexpensive gift for the Christmas tree.

One-fourth pound butter, 1 cup powdered sugar, 1 egg, juice of 1 orange, 1 cup crushed pineapple, 1 cup nut meats 1 1-2 dozen lady fingers. Cream butter with sugar, add well-beaten egg, then orange juice, pineapple and nut meats. Pour in bowl lined with lady fingers. Set in ice box or cool place overnight to harden. Serve with whipped cream and top with a cherry.

In response to invitations sent out earlier in the week, forty-four guests assembled at the auditorium which was invitingly decorated with potted plants placed at vantage points about the spacious room and a profusion of yellow and white chrysanthemumus. As the guests arrived they were asked to register in a unique guest book on the table, near the door, which was laid with a lovely Mexicon lace cloth and centered with a tall vase holding giant yellow pon-pon chrysanthemums. Tables were placed for playing bridge and 42. After a series of games had been played, a messenger arrived with a Western Union telegram for Mrs. J. D. Peeples, Jr., asking her to announce the approaching marriage of Miss Marcelle Taylor, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor of Milano to Earenst Goodman of Hearne and Fairfield. "CHRISTMAS TREE LANE"

It was to combat the waste of nature's bounty that the idea of the living Christmas tree was conceived the first lighted, living tree being, according to report, at Altadena, Calif., along a mile-long stretch of streets now called Christmas Tree Lane. These trees are the graceful Himalaya cedars known as Doedars, or Trees of God. They are hung with thousands of colored electric lights, the illumination beginning on Christmas Eve and lasting through New Year's night, with an accompaniment of community singing.

From this Christmas Tree Lane the lovely plan of having outdoor, living, lighted Christmas trees has spread well over the land. The first garden club of national importance to take up this idea in whole-hearted fashion was that of Des Moines, Iowa. That city has come to be known as the Christmas Tree City, with lighted trees on virtually every lawn. The supreme beauty of such lighted, living trees outdoors lies in the fact that they are not merely for the pleasure of the few but for the enjoyment of every passer-by.

This custom of lighting growing trees has spread until now in every town from coast to coast gayly colored trees blazen a Christmas message.

MERRIE CHRISTMAS

"God rest ye, merrie gentleman!" Never old, ever new the salutation is resurrected as another Christmas rolls around.

It is no wonder that Christmas is universally the holiday of the year with English speaking peoples, for its roots lie buried in antiquity. Long before the Romans brought Christianity to the British Isles, a pagan festival—the Yuletide—took place annually in the latter part of December.

It was the greatest of the pagan celebrations. It was held in honor of the winter solstice—the time when the sun starts its return northward, bringing promise of coming spring. Sun worship, of course, was a great part of the religion of early pagan races.

When, in 597 A. D., Gregory the Great sent Augustine as the first missionary to the British Isles, he wisely cautioned him not to destroy the temple or customs of the people—but to change them into Christian churches and celebrations. So it was that the traditional Yule-log burning, the featsting and revelry, became associated with the birth of Christ, and the holiday took the name of "Christes Masse," which eventually became our familiar "Christmas."

Cheese Rind for Birds

In a recent discussion of the best way of feeding birds in the garden one experimenter put forward the rind of a tilton cheese as the supreme Christmas fare! Birds of many sorts especially the robin, are greedily fond of it. They have a desire for fat and the cheese provides this in association with other virtues. If we feed birds for the sake of watching them as well as comforting them, the rind, if preserved in more or less unbroken form, has the advantage that it cannot be carried away and attracts five or six species of birds if not more.—London Spectator.

DOLLS

Dolls of long ago are treasured memories in the history of this country. The affection George Washington had for his little step-granddaughter, Nellie Custis, is revealed in the story of how she followed him about Mount Vernon with the picture books he hal brought her from Philadephia and her fashionably dressed dolls, as carefully correct in every sartorial detail of that era as the little girl of today demands of the dolls of this period.

The custom of dolls dressed in fashionable attire was one which was brought not only from England but from France and Spain in the early days of this country. For hundreds of years these "babies" had been used in European countries for hairdresser's exhibitions of coifs and to display the designs of costumes. Soon these fashion dolls became the playthings of little girls. Santa Claus was delighted at their pleasure in them and put one for each little girl down on his list. The dolls that were dressed in the fashions of the ladies of the day wore fashionable little girl dresses and fashionable baby clothes just as the dolls to day. It was not until the middle of the eighteenth century that the "little ladies" and "babies" were called dolls. The word is supposed to be taken from the Danish name for the maid servant, "daul."

Paper dolls, that have always delighted American children in great numbers, were originated as fashion plates with which the little girls of the household played. Many ingenious varieties of paper dolls are again offered this year, from those complete in themselves, those to be cut out and those to be made by the little girls and painted from designs and sheets of papers, paints and crayons included in a paper doll set.

The newest doll that will be displayed on toy counters for 1938 is one which can drink from its bottle lying down.

Nutrition Program For H E Classes

Nell Ayers of the State Department of Health Austin was in Cameron this week to confer with the Milam county health nurse and the county school board concerning plans for a nutrition program for the home economics department of the high schools of Cameron, Rockdale and Thorndale.

The State Department of Health plans to give school children of the home economics department of the high schools in each county in the state, the opportunity of visiting in a specially equipped trailer where a trained supervisor will explain the value of a knowledge of nutrition to each group. The trailer is so constructed as to be able to accomodate only six students at a time, a group small enough that each may have the special benefit of each detail.

This nutrition program will be started sometime next January and will continue through part of February. Only one day will be spent in each county as the number of counties in Texas necessitates a small amount of time allotted to each one as possible in order to be able to give this advantage to all the counties in the state.

Miss Iva Earl Heath, who is a freshman student at State University spent the Thanksgiving Holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Heath here.
